

We have been learning the story of How Rabbit Lost its Tail. Abigail and Alex have written their own retelling. We looked for the story outside and found each paragraph.

How the rabbit lost his tail

A long long time ago rabbits had long tails but cats did not have tails. The naughty cat looked with envious eyes at Mr. rabbit's tail it was just the sort of tail she'd always wanted.

One day Mr. rabbit fell asleep with his tail hanging out, the naughty cat came along with a knife and chopped off Mr. rabbit's tail and had it sown on to her body before Mr. rabbit woke up!

The naughty cat asked Mr. rabbit if it looked better on her than it ever did on him. Mr. rabbit agreed that it looked better on her, he also convinced himself that it was to long anyway. Then the rabbit said", to the cat I will let you keep my tail if you give me your knife," the cat gave Mr rabbit the knife and he bounded along through the forest. After a long time he came to a man who was weaving baskets and biting the rushes off with his teeth, then he looked and caught sight of Mr rabbit

So Mr Rabbit said that he would let the man keep the knife if he gave him one of his baskets. So he bounded along through the deep forest and said to himself, "I will find a new tail or something else just as good."

Then he came across an old woman who looked up and noticed Mr Rabbit.
